The Song of Songs paints in our imaginations a physical place where we may spend time with Christ and enjoy his love. The language of human longing is intended to evoke an experience of divine affection and channels our desires to their true end, our Creator and Redeemer. In this ninety–day devotional Tim Chester has curated a selection of writings from classic authors such as Gregory the Great, Richard Sibbes, Hudson Taylor, Charles Spurgeon, and many others, that will help readers better know the love of Christ.

This book takes us back to the beautiful and tender tradition of the classical, christological interpretation, which makes the modern interpretation seem shallow and boring. Highly recommended!

Tim Chester has compiled a treasure trove of writings on the 'most biblical' of all the books in Scripture, so called because of what it is ultimately about: God's love for his people; Christ's love for the church; the love of the saved for the savior.
