AUTHOR

Nathaniel Vincent (c.1639-1697) was an English nonconformist minister. He was appointed by Oliver Cromwell to be one of the first fellows of Durham University. His powerful preaching style and ability to explain things simply made him one of the most popular puritans published in his day.

ENDORSEMENTS

The Puritans knew what it meant to wrestle with God in secret. Yet of all the spiritual disciplines, prayer is perhaps the hardest to sinful flesh; it tests faith, enrages the devil, and often proves laborious to the languid soul. Still, every true believer can attest to sweet seasons of soul-soothing joy, peace, and refreshment at the throne of grace. It is to that aspiration of deeper, healthier, and livelier prayer that the Puritan pastor Nathaniel Vincent desires to lead us in the plenitude of his experiential applications. If you long for a reinvigorated prayer life, this book will serve as fresh fuel for the flame of your zeal. Read it carefully, pray over it fervently, and apply it with heartfelt dependence on the Spirit!
