DESCRIPTION

Micah told God's people three times to fear God's judgement for sin but to hope in His faithful love. God says because the people's sin has ruined the land, He will allow the Assyrians to destroy their towns. But one day God will rescue Israel from their enemies, and lead them back home to a place of perfect peace where everyone will thrive. Brian Wright and John Brown show how Micah's prophecy ultimately points to Jesus.

ENDORSEMENTS

The God's Daring Dozen series is made up of wonderful little books that will bless curious little people, and the not–so–little people who have the privilege of reading to them.

Tim Challies
Author, 'Seasons of Sorrow'

A tremendous resource for Christian families.

Evangelical Times

These are excellent. What a gift to children and the church.

Bruce Waltke
Professor of Old Testament, Emeritus, Reformed Theological Seminary, Orlando, Florida

Brian Wright and John Brown have done the church a great service with this children's series. Each book faithfully summarizes the content of the prophet's teaching and presents it in a way that is concise, clear, and easily understandable.
