AUTHOR

James Smith (1802–1862) was a passionate preacher of the gospel who pastored several Particular Baptist congregations in 19th Century England, including the historic New Park Street Chapel in London, which later became the Metropolitan Tabernacle, famously pastored by C. H. Spurgeon.

ENDORSEMENTS

I love this daily devotional from the pen of James Smith, the predecessor of Charles Spurgeon at the New Park Street Chapel in London. Smith is beautifully clear and simple (much like Ryle and Spurgeon), but he is often more experiential than Ryle and more succinct than Spurgeon. Through your daily 'visits' with Pastor Smith, may you grow in your walk with the Lord as you taste more of His grace, goodness, and gospel in these savory and spiritually warm meditations.

The unique qualities of James Smith's Daily Remembrancer can be summarised as pastoral, doctrinal, experiential, and practical. Readers will find there concise and memorable readings, warming the heart, searching the conscience, comforting the soul, endearing the Lord Jesus, and directing the life in the God's ways. Preachers will find Smith's terse and orderly style enormously suggestive for sermon outlines, and will be amazed at the fresh shafts of light that fall upon familiar themes. Having gone through Smith for many years, I can heartily recommend this new and attractive edition.
