AUTHOR

Stephen Marshall (c.1594–1655) was a leading English Puritan preacher, influential at the Westminster Assembly, and renowned for his passionate sermons and writings that shaped the spiritual and political life of 17th-century England.

ENDORSEMENTS

Marshall expertly, soundly, and pastorally encourages readers to pursue the best life: a life lived in Christ by faith. As a devout Protestant, Marshall insists that the means of grace—hearing and reading the Word and the Sacraments—are the only sure way to live this life of faith well.

Michael Lynch

The English Presbyterians have been unjustly neglected in Purtian reprints. Stephen Marshall, a leading Westminster Divine, is a prime example of this. However, this short collection of sermons begins to remedy that, introducing us to his rich Christ centered and practical teaching. This is a very welcome publication!
