A Boy of Two Worlds

Lorna Eglin

RELEASE DATE 20 JANUARY 2014

RELATED TITLES

MARKETING POINTS

Fiction with a Clear Gospel Message

Maasai tribe, Africa

Childhood, change

AUTHOR

Lorna Eglin is an AIM missionary in South Africa and taught Maasai girls in Kenya. Her students went on to be professionals in modern Kenya, including the first Maasai lady doctor and the wife of Kenya's ambassador to Japan.

ENDORSEMENTS

It is not as in many children's books simply a matter of easy believism, but an exploration of all that is involved from belief to discipleship to evangelism. All is broken down into simple but powerful illustrations and parables to aid understanding in the young...I reccomend this doctrinally sound and extremely educational children's book, placing it among those of a higher standard which can safely be distributed to the children in the our churches.

Kathy Childress, Tottenham, Grace Magazine, January 2007

It is not as in many children's books simply a matter of easy believism, but an exploration of all that is involved from belief to discipleship to evangelism. All is broken down into simple but powerful illustrations and parables to aid understanding in the young...I recommend this doctrinally sound and extremely educational children's book, placing it among those of a higher standard which can safely be distributed to the children in our churches.

Grace Magazine

TECHNICAL DETAILS

POCKET PAPERBACK
208 Pages
Reading Age: 9-12

ISBN 9781845501266
BISAC JUV033010
PRICE £5.99 $8.99