AUTHOR

Lisa Stadler has extensive experience with young people, teens, and step-kids - this book merges her gifts of writing and counseling. This book reaches out to teenagers struggling with the day-to-day conflicts and problems of modern life. With the common-sense and wisdom that God has given her through his word, worked out in her life, Lisa wants young people to discover God's answers. She has a Masters degree in Biblical Studies and is now working on a PhD in Psychology.

ENDORSEMENTS

This teen book helped me to get on much better with my 14 year old daughter. First I read it then I gave it to her. My daughter liked it very much. The writer has a real sense of what Christian teens experience.

Nellie Cronin, Cardiff

This book is written in such a superb way. It focuses on many of the problems and situations of life which teens are faced with. The author analyzes each one, offering ways to deal with the problems. She even adds a prayer or thought at end of each chapter, emphasizing how having faith and talking to God can help you find solutions.

Barbara Cherry, (Northeast Philly, PA)

As a father of 2 teens, I can relate to the problems that kids are experiencing in this phase of their life. This book really embraces each problem, offering teens ways to deal with life. I was impressed how with each problem the author turned to God for guidance and confidence in helping the teen deal with life. All teens should read this book!!!

Daniel Angus Grant, Glasgow Scotland

I found this book very informative. Each chapter talked about a teenage experience. Each time I started a chapter, I couldn't put the book down. Ms. Stadler really seems to understand what the teen is facing. She offers suggestions for each problem. She encourages teens to talk to God to help them get through troubled times. Great Christian Reading!
