AUTHOR

J. Douglas MacMillan was born in Scotland in 1933 in Argyllshire, became a shepherd on the family croft, and after his conversion, he became a well-beloved preacher, teacher, pastor and professor.

ENDORSEMENTS

"He has a most interesting way of taking verses of scripture and almost putting them under the microscope, while at the same time showing how they fit in with God's broader plan...Christ-centred and most readable it provides a feast of hearty spiritual nourishment."

CLC Book Reviews

"The God of All Grace is a wonderful collection of sermons, together with Douglas MacMillan's personal testimony and thirteen collected articles. These range over subjects as varied as grace, evangelistic preaching, three on matters to do with eldership, John Knox-Preacher of the Word and Calvin, Geneva and Christian Mission."
