AUTHOR

Irene Howat is an award–winning author and poet who lives in Scotland.

ENDORSEMENTS

"This is a challenging book which should encourage Christians to get out into the market place and share their faith and works with those most in need."

Sir David McNee, Retired Commissioner, Metropolitan Police

"Maureen McKenna's life story breathes the air of the two worlds in which she has lived. The Glasgow in which she was born and whose people she so obviously loves, and the Kingdom of God... A great read!"

Sinclair B. Ferguson
Chancellor's Professor of Systematic Theology, Reformed Theological Seminary

"Government policies and urban renewal schemes can change the environment, fund organisations, and create opportunities. But only God can change people. And he does. If you doubt that, read on!"

John Nicholls
Associate Minister, Smithton Free Church of Scotland, Inverness, formerly Chief Executive, London City Mission

"A window into both the heart of God and his power to change lives."

Laspic Stewart, Chairman, Open Door Trust Glasgow
