ENDORSEMENTS

Strachan effectively argues that we rightly reenchant humanity, and thus come to see the truth, goodness, and beauty of humanity, only when we view it in relation to the end for which it was created: conformity to Jesus Christ, the meaning of life made flesh.

Kevin J. Vanhoozer
Research Professor of Systematic Theology, Trinity Evangelical Divinity School, Deerfield, Illinois

This book supplies a doctrine of mankind that is derived from God's Word, that is both Christological and covenantal, and that celebrates that our chief end is to glorify God by enjoying him forever. 'Reenchanting Humanity' is a gift to the church in the twenty–first century.

Jason S. DeRouchie
Research Professor of Old Testament and Biblical Theology at Midwestern Baptist Theological Seminary; Content Developer and Global Trainer with Hands to the Plow Ministries

Every book Owen Strachan writes is worth the cover price, but 'Reenchanting Humanity' doubly so. Strachan tackles the pressing biblical, theological, and cultural issues pertaining to human existence and experience. As he does, Strachan is resolutely orthodox, helpfully prescient, and unmistakably clear. Strachan offers the reader a guided tour through biblical anthropology, and any who desires to engage these issues owes it to himself to buy and read this book.

Jason K. Allen
President, Midwestern Baptist Theological Seminary

This book is a deep well issuing forth a fountain of biblical insight about what it means to be a human being created in the image of God. Drink deeply from this wonderful book.
