AUTHOR

James Muldoon lives in Reading with his wife, Jennie, and their three children. He studied Classics and then Theology and now serves as co–pastor of Carey Baptist Church.

Jennie studied Theology and trained as an Occupational Therapist. She and her husband, James, have three children, all of whom will probably be on the stage one day.

ENDORSEMENTS

… an encouraging story of authentic faith in times of trial, and a God whose ways may sometimes seem strange, but whose love really does endure forever. I'm confident this book will help God's people 'weep with those who weep' and shine forth the comfort and mercy of Christ Jesus.

Matt Searles
Director of Training, South Central Gospel Partnership Author of Tumbling Sky: Psalms for Weary Souls

In an easy style, and with honesty and tears, James and Jennie tell us their story of suffering. We learn that the Lord leads us through situations which are too much for us to bear, but are not too much for Him to carry us through. With an open Bible, and with a wisdom born of their own experience, they then move on to give us a host of practical suggestions about helping the suffering. It is all challenging and wonderful.

Stuart Olyott
Pastoral Director, Evangelical Movement of Wales

… pastorally sensitive and biblically faithful. When we suffer we need truth, compassion and hope. This book will help you to find these things in Jesus.

Paul Mallard
Author of 'Invest Your Suffering' & Pastor, Widcombe Baptist Church, Bath, UK

James and Jennie's honest, and at times raw, account of their experiences will be a great help, both to those who are facing suffering, and to friends and family who seek to support them. It is full of Godly wisdom and Christ–centred hope.

Vaughan Roberts
Rector of St Ebbe's, Oxford and Director of Proclamation Trust
