DESCRIPTION

No one has ever seen God. In fact, the Bible says it's impossible. And yet, to live the Christian life, you must see God. If we can see God, the very sight of Him will fuel and motivate all the other aspects of our lives. When we behold God's glory it changes everything about us. John Davis invites us to join him in fixing our eyes on the One who is invisible.

AUTHOR

John Davis began full–time ministry in 2011 and currently serves as the Senior Minister at Columbia Christian Church in Columbia, Kentucky, where he lives with his wife, Jennifer, and two kids, Owen and Jordyn. He has a bachelor's degree in Business Management from the University of Kentucky and a master's in Theology from Cincinnati Bible Seminary. John is also the author of 'God–Centered Christianity: the Bible's Antidote for Self–Centered Religion', published by the Christian Restoration Association.

ENDORSEMENTS

I sincerely appreciate what John has done on this seldom–addressed subject. He found many relevant angles to develop and unfolded them in ways that are very relevant to Christian thinking and living. I was quite moved many times as I was reading it.

Jack Cottrell
(1938–2022) Author, pastor, theologian

... captures the biblical tension of the call to spend our lives as Christians seeking what we cannot see as the path to truly know the Triune God.

Brian Croft
Pastor, Auburndale Baptist Church, Louisville, Kentucky and Founder, Practical Shepherding

My affections were stirred while reading Seeing the Unseen God, and I heartily commend it. Not only is it thoroughly biblical, but it is also pastorally sensitive. Read this book and let Pastor Davis shepherd you into the presence of Christ, in whose face you will see the glory of the unseen God.

Samuel G. Parkison
Assistant Professor of Systematic Theology, Church History, and Philosophy, Midwestern Baptist Theological Seminary; author, 'To Gaze Upon God: The Beatific Vision in Doctrine, Tradition, and Practice'

John Davis' provocative book goes beyond most authors who have dared to write about "seeing" God. His thoughts are fresh, readable and insightful. They are certain to challenge you to open the eyes of your heart that you might see God in ways you may never have considered.

Bob Russell
Retired Senior Minister, Southeast Christian Church, Middletown, Kentucky
