DESCRIPTION

Creation is Fallen: Unraveling the Mystery of Natural Evil

With foreword by Hans Madueme

Delving into one of Christianity's toughest questions, this book explores why a good God allows animal suffering and natural evil. Drawing from both Scripture and science, Coulson examines the historical and theological roots of animal suffering, predation, and natural disasters. He traces the debate from the Church Fathers through to modern creationist and evolutionary thought, critically engaging with the most influential theodicies and defenses. With vivid real-world examples—from the parasitic cuckoo bird to the realities of predation and extinction—Coulson brings the problem of natural evil into sharp focus.

Unlike many books that gloss over biblical nuance or scientific detail, Creation is Fallen offers a rigorous, balanced approach. Coulson's expertise in both theology and science shines as he navigates complex questions about the Fall, the meaning of "very good" in Genesis, and the implications for Christian faith today.

Perfect for anyone seeking thoughtful answers about the reality of evil in the natural world. Discover why understanding the fallen nature of creation is essential for a robust, honest, and hope-filled Christian worldview.

AUTHOR

Ken P. Coulson holds a PhD in earth science and is currently working on a master's degree in apologetics. He teaches as an adjunct at two Christian universities, and is the founder of the Creation Unfolding YouTube channel that engages Christianity as it intersects with science. He resides with his wife and three daughters in Brisbane, Australia.

ENDORSEMENTS

I know of no other work like it. It is much needed in today's discussion on these foundational issues in theology and science.

Stephen J. Wellum

Professor of Christian Theology, The Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville, Kentucky

... presents a robust defense for a young-earth creationist view of the origin of suffering and natural evil that is thoroughly biblical.

Matthew A. McLain

Associate Professor of Biology and Geology, The Master's University, Santa Clarita, California

... a superb defense of a Bible-based young age creationism.

William D. Barrick

Professor of Old Testament, The Master's Seminary, Sun Valley, California

... unhesitatingly engages the sober and ugly reality of a groaning, fallen creation, seeking to provide biblically grounded answers to questions on the original goodness of creation, the effects of the fall into sin, and the curse of God on creation.

William VanDoodewaard

Professor of Church History, Greenville Presbyterian Theological Seminary, Greenville, South Carolina
