DESCRIPTION

Rediscovering the Essence of Evangelical Faith

In Recovering a Vintage Faith, Cory Marsh argues that authentic evangelical identity is anchored in five fundamentals:

- the supremacy of Scripture
- the exclusivity of Jesus
- a zeal for evangelism
- participation in theological education
- commitment to the local church

Marsh contends these essentials have been obscured in modern evangelicalism, resulting in an unstable "evan-jello-calism" driven by cultural trends rather than biblical conviction. With clarity and insight, he calls evangelicals back to their historic theological roots, casting a vision for a vibrant faith defined by right belief and behavior. A timely, provocative manifesto for the evangelical church.

ENDORSEMENTS

This book is grounded in theological depth and clarity. Essential reading for both scholars and everyday believers.

Joel Muddamalle
Director of Theology and Research, Proverbs 31 Ministries; author, 'The Hidden Peace'

This book is current (he cites contemporary literature); it is critical (he thoroughly analyzes the real nature of Evangelicalism's sickness); and it is curative (he knows what can bring permanent healing to these great maladies).

William Varner
Professor of Biblical Studies, The Master's University, Santa Clarita, California

... calls for a "vintage faith" that is theologically anchored and historically informed, grounded in the commitments of a fully inspired Scripture and Christ-centered gospel.

David S. Dockery
President, International Alliance for Christian Education and Distinguished Professor of Theology, Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary, Fort Worth, Texas

What I love about this book is that he centers on belief, on doctrine, focusing on theology instead of on sociology. He reminds us that evangelicalism is about the gospel, the evangel, and that evangelicalism relies on the Bible as God's authoritative and infallible word.

Thomas R. Schreiner
James Buchanan Harrison Professor of New Testament Interpretation and Associate Dean, The Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville, Kentucky
