AUTHOR

Denise George is an internationally popular writer and speaker best known for creative Biblical application. Denise is married to Dr. Timothy George, executive editor of Christianity Today and founding Dean of Beeson Divinity School in Birmingham, Alabama.

ENDORSEMENTS

... warm, funny and very honest. Denise George is very open about her own faults, and the lessons she had to learn about other people, especially those who are 'different'. The book challenges us to ask how we would cope in a similar situation; could we 'love the unlovely'? ... an easy, entertaining read, with a powerful message, showing how God can work through the most unlikely people to challenge and change us.

I saw Johnny Cornflakes featured in the Fourth Pres. Library in Bethesda Maryland, USA. It caught my eye and I loved it. It has what I love in a book, inspiration, fun, depth, encouragement, and reality in Christ!
