ENDORSEMENTS

Totally Sufficient belongs in every Christian counselor training program as a useful tool in teaching learners the importance of biblically evaluating the many competing philosophies in the field of counseling.

Judy A. Dabler
Executive Director, Center for Biblical Counseling & Education, St. Louis, Missouri

Confused about counselling - what to believe and who to believe? Then this is the book for you! The subjects are discussed clearly and comprehensively. The language is free from technical jargon, and the chapters can be easily and helpfully understood by the average reader. This book deserves a wider readership. It is very good and well worth buying.

Evangelical Times

This remarkable book on Christian counseling vis-à-vis psychological counseling carries an admirably accurate title: Totally Sufficient. Not only is its subject - the Bible - totally sufficient as a clinical tool in skilful hands for the treatment of behavioural disorders, but this compendium of twelve essays is also eminently adequate to the task which it confronts.

D. James Kennedy
(1930-2007) Late Pastor of Coral Ridge Presbyterian Church, Fort Lauderdale, Florida

An excellent review of the fundamental issues of how to counsel in contemporary society.

Andrew J. Peterson
Vice-President for Global Outreach, Western Seminary, Portland, Oregon
