ENDORSEMENTS

… readers will be spurred on to work hard to be more like Christ, leaning and trusting on the abundant grace available for us. I pray that the Lord will use this book to help believers all over the world to grow in godliness and maturity.

Harshit Singh
Pastor, Satya Vachan Church (True Word Church), India

Isaac Adams' plainly spoken and biblically sound workbook interrupts the cycle of "discipleship apathy," and gives us ample skills in prayer, evangelism, church, community, and more. We all could use a refresher course in Training, and heed his exhortation to 'train for eternity' by helping each other live more wisely today.

K. A. Ellis
Director, The Center for the Study of the Bible and Ethnicity, Reformed Theological Seminary, Atlanta, Georgia

We cannot force God to give us his grace, but we can position ourselves along the paths where he loves to give it. Let Isaac Adams be your guide to spiritual growth as a divine gift—and a calling for all who claim the name of Christ.

David Mathis
Executive Editor, desiringGod.org; Pastor, Cities Church, Minneapolis/St Paul

Pastor Isaac Adams has written a book about important matters. What's more, it's a book that is true, good, simple and clear, filled with very practical advice for the new Christian. Some of this teaching is too rare today. And it is accompanied by a story with some surprising depth. All in all, a tool worth knowing about and using.

Mark Dever
Senior Pastor, Capitol Hill Baptist Church and President, 9Marks.org, Washington, DC
