Peace and Truth

I just finished this book an incredible moving story. I could not put the book down, inspirational, encouraging and the story makes you really think about who you are where your life is going. I will one day visit the Preshal centre one day soon so inspired. Also a strange twist for me as the building the centre is in was the very church myself and my 3 sisters and brother attended when we were young (the Church of the Nazarene) it was a friend from the Cathcart Baptist church (Dave Murray) who loaned me the book I was meant to read that book it took me right back to my childhood and the Sunday School in that very building I will definitely be visiting this centre soon (so so inspired) may all the good work you are all carrying out for Jesus flow into lots of people's hearts. Thank-you for the memories and the inspiration May, and all at the Preshal centre. Good luck!

Annette Mcgartland, Govan

May has the same love for the poorest of the poor and the richest of the rich. She is at home with lords and ladies and with the lowly and loneliest. Living out God's love with and among the poor, she reflects Jesus who, "though he was rich, yet for your sake he became poor that we might be made rich".'

Chuck Wright

The key to May's amazing ministry is in her prayer after conversion: "I'd like to have millions and millions of Jesus' love so that wherever I go it would spill out on the people I meet". I have seen this love spill out on drug addicts and duchesses, politicians and prisoners in Dundee, Paisley, Northern Ireland and Romania. I can't wait to see what May does next!'
